To Please the Palate
Our aim in serving meat—to retain the fine flavor Nature bestows, not to let it go to waste, as some meatshops do. With prolonging this true tale, it may be set down for a fact that here is to be found a first-class place to purchase beef, mutton, lamb, ham, poultry and game, to give your table good credit with household and guest.

Wellington Improved Egg Food

for their poultry. It is as necessary in the chicken yard as salt is in the house. Poultry require this tonic and corrective preparation at times as much as we require occasional health giving helps. Domestic fowls are not wild birds and should not be treated as such. The safe way is to keep this food on hand.

Costs about 1 cent a day for 24 hens.

FOR SALE AT GROCERS, FEED STORES, and general supply houses, but if you cannot get it at your dealers send us his name and address and 25 cents and we will send you, prepaid, a package that will last a dozen hens 6 weeks and our book on feeding.

EXPLANATORY.

This issue of the Times-Gazette is published to comply with legal requirements. The Times-Gazette building, office and type has been wrecked by this week's earthquake and the supply of printing material has been cut-off owing to the serious calamity that has overtaken San Francisco and paralyzed its trade and transportation for the time being. The edition of this issue, therefore, is limited; and the indulgence of our patrons is requested in view of all the circumstances.

Now for a long pull and a strong pull all together.

LESSON FROM VESUVIUS

[The following extracts from an article in the San Jose Herald and published several days ago reads now almost like a forecast of Wednesday's unexpected events.]

It is always best not to be too sure of nature. Modern science has told mankind enough to make it natural and easy to exaggerate the extent and importance of what is known compared with that remaining beyond the range of human understanding.

When Vesuvius buried Pompeii under twenty feet of loose ashes and covered Herculaneum with a torrent of hot mud, men had lived for uncounted ages on the slopes of the peak and all about its base without suspecting that it was a volcano. There had been no eruption in historic or legendary times. The mountain did not smoke. Its top was not an open crater. Forests of old trees covered its sides.

But in the seventy-ninth year of the Christian era the mountain which had seemed so still and harmless, probably for thousands of years, blew its top off and destroyed two important cities besides many smaller places. It was like lightning from a clear sky. Since then the terrible mountain has been a frequent reminder that nothing positive can be predicted concerning the action of some of nature's forces.

After the first awful disaster there were long periods of quiet. One such interval lasted 124 years and another 269 years.

The first flow of lava came in 1066, nearly a thousand years after the destruction of Pompeii and Herculaneum. In the last century there were two notably tremendous eruptions, one in 1822 and the other in 1855, but the most remarkable change was the great frequency of eruptions in the last fifty years.

The volcano poured out lava, ashes, smoke and flaming gas at least five times from 1865 to 1895. Lately there had been longer periods of quiet than usual in the last few decades, and consequently the villages, gardens and orchards had crept farther up the slopes of the mountain.

It is clearly too soon, by far for man to assume that he has final and complete knowledge of many of the mighty forces of nature. As for controlling or guiding them, he is still as helpless as he was in the childhood of the human race.

WEDNESDAY'S EARTHQUAKE

It Came With Terrible Haste and Fury, Leaving Trail of Destruction to Show its Mastery.

IN VIEW OF MIGHTY UPHEAVAL

The Feeling Is of Thankfulness that Life Remains.

The great calamity which has overtaken our fair State fell with withering blight upon San Mateo county also, yet its people are not discouraged. With harsh ruins on all sides to bear witness to nature's mighty upheaval, the work of clearing away the wreck has already begun and new homes and public buildings and activities will ultimately obliterate the old and relegate that dread 18th day of April, 1906, to its place in history. So far as known, loss of life was lost slight in San Mateo county, although miraculous escapes were numerous. For this providential deliverance there is widespread and open acknowledgement that this overshadows all else and that in this, San Mateo county has been truly blessed.

THE GREAT FIRE

Its Course and Terrors Described by Eye Witnesses.

W. Z. Price of Redwood City was in business on Post street between Mason and Taylor, San Francisco. The first great blaze he noticed was of the Winchester hotel on Third street, which took fire at about 6 o'clock Wednesday morning and speedily worked up to the Call building on Third and Market, thence out on the south side of Market street continuing about Fourteenth street, stopping short of Woodward's pavilion, but burning out and further along Folsom, Howard and parallel streets to about 18th street and there stopped.

The great conflagration that raged in Hayes Valley also started at 6 o'clock or soon after, Wednesday morning. This was the fire that burned St. Ignace's church, the Mechanics' Pavilion, Supreme Court building and all through the Hayes Valley residence district. Thus two great conflagrations moved down the city simultaneously, one traveling from Third street market, the other raging with race-horse speed in from Hayes valley.

There was little or no wind in the morning, but at about 2:30 p. m. the wind blew strong from the west and caused the fire to turn back and consume the Examiner and adjoining buildings, Palace Hotel, Grand Hotel, etc., along toward 3 o'clock, after which the fire swept down toward the ferry, burning out the great business blocks and everything in its path.

At about 8:30 Wednesday evening the fire crossed Market street at about the junction of Sansome, Sutter and Market, and traveled in two broad general paths, one out Sutter, Post, O'Farrell, Ellis and Market, and at the opposite angle along Sansome to Pine, California, Sacramento, and thence towards Bush street, taking in Nob Hill among other districts and sweeping away buildings like so much chaff.

Wednesday at 12 midnight Mr. Price realized his place was doomed and he looked his doors for the last time and after that had nothing to do but look around. He says the Jewish synagogue on Sutter street burned at about 3 o'clock Thursday morning. St. Francis hotel 3:30, Congregational church at Post and Mason street, at 4 o'clock. By this time conflagrations were raging in five or more distinct locations and consuming everything.

At 4:30 Thursday morning his restaurant went to help feed the fire.

Pandemonium reigned. The scene was one of terror. There was a wild roar, the heat and smoke, the noise of dynamite and crashing walls, the constant extension of the safety lines and driving of the now homeless people on and yet still further on. The earthquake had not hurt Mr. Price. Immediately after the shock he bought up lots of bread and groceries and was prepared for the day's large emergency business which must surely come. Then it was reported to him that the water was shut off. Here was a dilemma, but on that terrible Wednesday morning he packed water by barrelful. Then came the fire. That broke him; so that within a few hours this staunch old man who knows no such word as defeat, was being hurried along with the rest of the crowd to escape those terrible flames and crumbling walls, and strange to relate, himself actually suffering for water to drink. Then he came back to Redwood, where people began to flock around eager to grasp his hand and tell him how the Capital hotel which he had built had proved to be so honestly constructed that it went through that great earthquake and saved the lives of all its guests.

LOSS REPORTS.

San Francisco, loss $1,000,000,000, killed 1,000.
San Jose, loss $3,000,000, killed 19.
Los Angeles, not a window broken.
Santa Rosa, total wreck, killed 45.
Hollister, loss $100,000, killed 1.
San Cruz, serious damage.
Reno, Nev., earthquake not felt.
Portland, scarcely felt the shock.
Portland, in splendid condition.
Glen Ellen, Home of Feeble Minded damaged.
Sebastopol, Knowles Hotel wrecked, Sacramento, scarcely damaged.
San Luis Obispo, no serious damage there nor south of there. At San Luis Obispo the tremor was hardly felt.

Agnew, Asylum destroyed, 110 killed.
Santa Clara, badly wrecked, loss $500,000.
Stockton, Modesto, Visalia, Fresno, Bakersfield, Turlock, Merced, all report no damage.
San Joaquin valley and Sacramento, untouched except Newman and Los Banos some damage.
Salinas, every brick building damaged, some seriously; new City Hall escaped.

Refugees from the Stricken City.

Reports as to the number of refugees traveling down the peninsula under all sorts of conditions have not been exaggerated. In addition to the travel by cars, a steady procession of conveyances filled with refugees or families have been passing down the county road not only during the daytime but all through the nights, seeking places of rest and safety.

KILLED BY FALLING CHIMNEY.

Emile Steinhach, a native of Switzerland, aged 43 years, was killed at Chas. Josselyn's place near Woodside from a falling chimney during the earthquake shock. The body was brought to Redwood City for burial.

Geo. Barker Dead

George Barker, County Auditor, died last night in this city after a long illness. Funeral to-morrow (Sunday) at 2:30 p. m.

DEATH OF MRS. SWIFT.

The numerous friends of Mrs. Mary Swift learned with sincere sorrow of her death last Saturday at the family home on Tenth street. After a long life of self-sacrifice this noble soul has passed away in peace and honor, leaving to her children the priceless treasure of a good name and noble example.

Mrs. Swift was a resident of San Mateo county since 1856 and was in her 80th year. She outlived all her old-time acquaintances. Her husband, Myer Swift, died some 10 years ago. She leaves to mourn her a brother, Mr. Matthew Hedge, two daughters, Rose and Elizabeth, and two sons, Jas. V. and Maurice A. Swift. Mrs. Swift had a truly eventful history. In 1854 during the yellow fever epidemic at New Orleans, she in company with a sister responded to the call for help and volunteered as a nurse when people were dying by thousands. Her sister was stricken by the fever while on duty with her, and doctors, nurses and attendants were swept away while she remained and became the heroine of the hour.

One of the exhibits in an English anatomical museum is a collection of three lungs preserved in alcohol. On one hand is an exhibit almost pure white, while the third is jet black, the one between being a dirty gray.

The first was taken from an Eskimo who all his life had inhaled the pure air of his northern home. The black was taken from a miner who had spent years in the production of coal. The third was from the body of a London man, and the tint was produced by the inhalation of the soot carried in the air.

It is a certain fact that the lungs of the miner were in a more healthy state than those of the city dweller, since the grit in his tissues was pure coal dust, while the discoloration of the other was due not alone to soot, but to the dust of a city's streets composed of a thousand and one deleterious elements.

The Shipper's Skipper.
A burly, thick headed skipper had been given the command of a little steam collier. Going up with great pride on to the bridge of his new ship, the first thing that caught his eye was the engine room telegraph. "What's that for?" he demanded. "Why, that goes down to the engine room," the reply. "You see all the orders on it-'Full speed,' 'Half,' 'Slow,' 'Stop.' You just have to move the handle."

"The old man was chafed. 'If I can put the handle to 'Full,' will she gang full or speed?' 'Why, certainly.' 'And if I can put the handle to 'Stop,' will she gang stop?' 'Certainly.' The old man was still more chafed. Finally, after thinking some time, he heaved a great sigh of pleasure. 'Why, that's fine, man! That's clever! That does away with all them saucy lumps o' engineers!'"

The Drum.
The history of the drum goes back to the childhood of the world. The Greeks ascribe its invention to Bacchus. The Egyptians had it at least 1,000 years before Christ. Pizarro found drums in South American temples. The snakes of Ireland, we are told, fled from the island before the drumbeats of St. Patrick. Our Puritan ancestors used the drum as a church bell. When Sir Edmund Andros ordered the drums to "strike up" to drown the voice of protesting colonists, the lights in the Hartford council chamber went out and the charter of Connecticut disappeared in the darkness to the safer shade of the Charter-oak.

The Dog and His Master.
Men and women are very much like clocks. Some are always on time, some are never on time, some are always in order, some are never in order. And while you may be able to tell something of a family by its timepiece, you can tell more by the nature of the dog that grows you a great gate. A dog grows up after the fashion of its master, or its mistress; a kind gentleman will not have an ugly brute on his place-Exchange.

Funerals in the Highlands.
A Scottish correspondent writes of funerals in the highlands: "There are no undertakers here. A carpenter makes the simple coffin, relatives and friends carry it, hip high, to its last resting place, which is dug when the end of the journey is reached, and, having walked perhaps six miles to the chosen kirkyard, they take a refreshment of sandwiches and whisky and walk home again. The rigorous absence of pomp is maintained, but there is the added embellishment of pipe music."

The Dhebar Lake.
A British government engineer living in Bombay asserts that India has the largest artificial fresh water reservoir in the world. He says that in the native state of Udaipur, in Rajputana, some thirty miles south of the city of Udaipur, is the great Jaisamand, the Dhebar lake. The dam of this lake was built some 200 years ago by the Maharana Jai Singh. It covers an area of between twenty-one and twenty-five square miles. Its depth at the dam is ninety feet, and its capacity is estimated at 153,000,000,000 gallons.

Those Beardless Angels.
The Right Rev. Richard H. Wilmer, late Bishop of Alabama, was remarkable at once for his piety and his humor. When some one asked him why it was that the pictures and figures of men angels as well as female angels were represented without beards the bishop replied promptly that it seemed to be easy enough to make angels out of women, but that men could only get into heaven by a "chase shave."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

The Drummer's Furlough.
Countless drummer boys have swelled the rolls of heroic deeds, and the heart of many a stern officer has been moved to pity for the childish drummers in his regiment. In the critical days of the civil war an order was issued that under no circumstances should a furlough be granted. Just then "General Scott," a Ohio drummer boy, aged thirteen, became terribly homesick and hungry for a sight of his mother.

Poor little General Scott! He had been in many battles, always obedient and fearless. But he was beaten at last. His lip quivered and his eyes filled with tears.

The handsman wrote out a brief statement of the case, but carefully avoided asking for a furlough, and sent General Scott with it up the line of officers. Generals Conly, Hayes and Crook each added a line, and then it was laid before Sheridan.

"No furlough can be granted," wrote the hero of Winchester. "But General Scott is hereby ordered to repair to his mother and to report again at his headquarters in thirty days." Thus headquarters in thirty days.

It was that one drummer boy went home on duty.-Youth's Companion.

TRAFALGAR.

The world will see other sea fights but never one like this, so close, so swift and with so much in it of the personal element. And what may be called the pace of the battle, the swiftness with which accident follows incident, is almost without a parallel in the history of war. The first gun was fired at 12:15; at 12:22, or only seven minutes after the French guns opened on him, Collingwood, with the British ships nearest to him, was through the enemy's line.

Only one brief minute later, or at 12:23 by the log of the Euryalus, Nelson is in the fight, and is pouring his first dreadful broadside into the stern of Villeneuve's flagship. Two minutes later the French and Spanish topmasts begin to fall. At 1:32, or sixty-seven minutes after the first gun was fired, Blackwood reports "the center and rear of enemy's line to be hard pressed in action." The fate of the battle is practically settled. Already some of the enemy's ships have struck. The swift moments run on, and the pulses of the great fight keep time with them. The advantage is not all on our side.

At 2:35, for example, or less than two hours from the moment when, a shape of majestic pride, the Royal Sovereign moved into the zone of the enemy's fire, she flies a mastless and hopeless hulk. She has done her work, but she has paid a terrible price for it. There is at this moment a flutter of flags on the masthead of the Victory, for Nelson has a great captain's watchman vision, and a frigate-the Euryalus-comes down with every inch of canvas set, groping her way through the smoke, to take the battered hull of the Royal Sovereign in tow, so that her broadsides-the mighty ship can sail fight, though she cannot sail-bear upon the enemy's ships within her reach.

This is not a battle spread through days. It is compressed almost into minutes. The first shot was fired at 12:15; before 3 o'clock after flag is going down; a great fleet is crumbling into ruin. By 5:30 o'clock all is over.-Cornhill Magazine.

How to Clean Old Book Plates.
To restore old book plates that have been injured by age and damp proceed as follows: Place upon a flat surface a sheet of white paper somewhat larger than the print to be cleaned. Carefully dampen the print on both sides with a soft, wet sponge and then saturate it with a mixture of chloride of lime and oxalic acid dissolved in about equal proportions in a pint of cold water. You can tell when the mixture is right by its turning magenta color. Continue to apply it until every stain or spot has disappeared and then with a clean sponge wash the print freely with cold water.

FINGERS AND FORKS.

Never use a fork when taking a piece of bread.

Avoid using a spoon for anything that is not liquid.

Putty should be eaten with a fork also ice cream where the proper forks are served.

It is permissible to eat every corn, asparagus, water cress and unadressed salad with the fingers.

Olives should be lifted from the dish with the olive fork or spoon, but should be eaten from the fingers.

Lemon is often served with fish and pancakes. The lemon should be taken in the fingers and squeezed upon the viands.

If cut sugar is served and there are no sugar tongs in the bowl, lift the pieces out as delicately as possible with the tips of the fingers.-New York Press.

A COSTLY DROP CURTAIN.

The enterprising manager of a theater called upon the famous French artist, Jean Louis Ernest Meissonier, on one occasion, says Mr. Robert Kemp in Pencil and Palette, and asked him to paint a drop scene for a certain theater and name his own terms.

"You have seen my pictures, then?" asked Meissonier.

"Oh, yes," exclaimed the manager, "but it is your name I want! It will draw crowds to my theater."

"And how large do you wish this curtain to be?" inquired the artist.

"Ah, well, we will say 15 by 18 meters," Meissonier took up a pencil and proceeded to make a calculation. At last he looked up and said with imperturbable gravity:

"I have calculated and find that my pictures are valued at 80,000 francs per meter. Your curtain, therefore, will cost you just 214,000 francs. But that is not all. It takes me twelve months to paint twenty-five centimeters of canvas. It will therefore take me just 150 years to finish your curtain. You should have come to me earlier, monsieur. I am too old for the undertaking now. Good morning."

CONQUESTS OF SILENCE.

Men Whose Greatness Was Not Measured by Their Speeches.
Washington never made a speech. In the zenith of his fame he once attempted it, failed and gave it up, confused and abashed. In framing the constitution of the United States the labor was almost wholly performed in committee of the whole, of which George Washington was day after day chairman, and he made but two speeches during the convention, of a very few words each. The convention, however, acknowledged the master spirit, and historians affirm that had it not been for his personal popularity and the thirty words of his speech, pronouncing it the best that could be united upon, the constitution would have been rejected by the people.
